Tourist Tariffs

The Department of Tourism regulates all tourism related activities in Bhutan. The existing travel agencies are registered with them, and they also fix the daily tariff rates. Thirty-five percent of the daily tariff goes directly to the Department of Tourism and hence to the national treasury. The current daily tariff is as follows:

Below Three Persons:	USD $ 250 per person per day.
Above Three Person & Below Fifteen Persons:	USD $ 200 per person per day.
Above Fifteen Persons:	USD $ 180 per person per day.

Indian Nationality

Group Traveler:	USD $ 90 per person per day
-----------------	------------------------------

Above Tariff are inclusive of everything i.e. three meals every day, transportation with guide and driver, 3 stars lodging during their stay in Bhutan.

The best time to come to Bhutan would be in March, April, May, September, October and November. There are many festivals during these periods, and visitors come to take advantage both of the pleasant climate and the wonderful festivals. However, Bhutan has limited tourism infrastructure and during peak seasons facilities are packed, so one has to book the tour well in advance or for those wanting to avoid the busy tourist periods the winter months of January, February June and December are recommended. You still have a lot to see in the off season too.
